The 2nd International Symposium on Consciousness, New Medicine and New Energy (26, 27 November, 1998, Tokyo)

Dr. Shiuji Inomata writes: The symposium started with about 300 participants at Ibuka Hall, Waseda University, which was donated by late Mr. Ibuka founder of SONY Corp, on 10 am by my opening greeting, which was followed by a welcome speech by Prof. Okushima, President of Waseda University. The president stated that it is very significant to study phenomena which have not been understood so far by conventional science. In medicine, we have studied only Western medicine but we should study Ki (Spirit) and Eastern medicine together with Western medicine from now on. Prof. Brian Josephson, Nobel prize physicist from Cambridge University, UK, in his opening lecture entitled "The Paranormal and The Platonic World" commented on the discovery of various paranormal phenomena: conventional scientific world view and orthodox physics have reached a limit. He also pointed out that the so-called Theory of Everything (T.O.E) has collapsed and our science has entered in a new phase. Beside Prof. Josephson, David Lorimer, Director, Scientific and Medical Network, UK, Dr. Brian O'Leary, Hawaii, U.S.A., Dr. Beverly Rubik, San Francisco, U.S.A. were invited as the overseas speakers. Six new energy related abstracts out of 15 representations have been already printed in the New Energy News, Jan. 1999 and the symposium proceedings are now being edited for publication. My judgement as the chairman of the organising committee is that we arrived at a new paradigm science which could accommodate perpetual motion-like free energy devices as well as paranormal phenomena in the 2nd symposium. There was a dramatic demonstration of spoon bending at the symposium, where the end sheared off when being held upright. The symposium related TV program was televised nation-wide on the evening of 31 Dec., and the viewers reportedly amounted to over ten million, and 80% of them recognised the reality of the paranormal phenomena, such as clairvoyance and metal-bending thus terminating the ESP controversies in Japan.

Prof. Sergei Sit'ko - Physics of the Alive

A new issue of Sergei's journal published partly in Russian and partly in English. Relates to what he calls the 'non-equilibrium fraction of electromagnetic irradiation from the body in the mm-range by direct experiments'. Articles deal with crucial evidence in favour of the fundamentals of a physics of the alive with a section on its medical and biological applications. All technical stuff but fascinating to specialists. The aim of the journal is to describe the transition from traditional biophysics to physics of the alive through an approach based on the application of synergetical and quantum mechanical principles to the theoretical description of life on all levels of its hierarchical organisation. James Oschman - What is Healing Energy?

A series of six articles on the scientific basis of energy medicine published in the Journal of Bodywork and Movement Therapies. Parts are: Historical Background, Measuring the Fields of Life, Silent Pulses, Vibrational Medicines, Gravity, Structure and Emotions, Is Energy Medicine the Medicine of the Future? Very comprehensive treatment. Enquiries about the cost of this reprint to Jim at PO Box 5101, Dover, NH 03821, USA. Email: JOschman@aol.com

Janine Murray - LifesMiracles.net

Janine is setting up a web site dedicated to the sharing of interesting life experiences, without judgment. Experiences that are surprising, coincidental, mystical, strange, puzzling, transformational or miraculous. Visitors to the site can submit or read short accounts of experiences, poems, words of wisdom and comments. There is also a bulletin board. Topics of interest include apparitions, cancer, coincidental meetings, ESP, pregnancy and childbirth, NDEs and OBEs. In the future there will be an interview of the month. Dr. William Baldwin and Dr. Alan Sanderson - Remote Spirit Release Project

General Considerations

Alan writes: As spiritual therapists, we look forward to the time when our methods will be accepted by the medical profession. But the medical profession is not interested. Why should it bother even to notice us, when there are no research findings to support our claims? If we want to be taken seriously, we must initiate research. Without measured corroboration of our claims, we cannot speak from the same platform as conventional therapists, and we will simply be laughed at. Only well-designed studies, every bit as rigorous as those demanded of conventional therapists, will do. I am fortunate in having experience in research, both in anthropology and in psychiatry. I believe that spirit release has reached a level of development at which scientific research is perfectly feasible, and that we should be embarking upon this now. Remote spirit release (RSR) is more suitable than is direct spirit release (DSR) for experimental study, since it avoids the criticism that the target subject (TS) has been influenced by the beliefs of the therapist. Indeed, in one way, it verges on the ideal, for the study can be "double blind", with neither the subject nor the researcher knowing whether treatment has been given. The project here described is perfectly feasible. It requires only a small number of research subjects and it can be completed within months. It could provide a firm foundation for further studies.

Kevin Allen - Science, Discourse and Mind

Announcing a new reviewed journal: Science, Discourse and Mind. The editors welcome articles that encompass discourses in popular science, the social sciences, the humanities and mental health. Articles may be either empirical, methodological, or historical. Book reviews are welcome. The journal is interdisciplinary and does not subscribe to any particular paradigmatic view. Members interested in submitting articles, or obtaining copies of the journal, may consult the web site for further details: www.leeds.ac.uk/sdm

Simon Best - Electromagnetic Hazard and Therapy

An updated version of Electromagnetic News - the name change reflects the growing interest in the positive use of EMFs as well as their hazardous uses. Topics covered include powerlines, VDUs, microwaves, magnetotherapy, mobile phones and safety guidelines. Details: www.epsilon-ltd.co.uk/emht or from PO Box 2039, Shoreham by Sea, Sussex BN43 5JD.

Steve Moore - Journal of Yijing Studies

The Oracle is a non-profit journal devoted to the I Ching (Yijing) and related studies and published irregularly but about twice a year. It consists mainly of articles and there is an interesting editorial on the history and cultural impact of the oracle in Brazil. Details: 7 Hillend, Shooters Hill, London SE18 3NH.
